BENEFITS OF AN INTERNATIONAL EXPERIENCE

Human and cultural interaction reside at the very center of theatrical expression, so there is no better way to experience the stories and dramatic practices of many cultures than by interacting with other students and artists of the theatre from across the globe.

The programs recommended by ISO all offer courses for our students that can count toward major or minor requirements.

ACADEMIC & TIMING CONSIDERATIONS

Depending on the program you enroll in, you may receive either direct or transfer credit for the courses you complete abroad. Some courses taken abroad may satisfy Drama major or minor requirements, but must be approved in advance of the student’s departure by the Director of Undergraduate Programs in Drama. Students should consult with the department’s DUP no later than one full term in advance of departure in order to determine the courses that may satisfy Drama major or minor requirements.

STUDENT TESTIMONIAL

When I was abroad, I had the opportunity to focus on the French language and improve my speaking and writing skills for four months. Anybody who returns from a foreign language exchange program will tell you the same thing: immersion is the only way to learn a language. You can always travel to a country after college, but study abroad programs allow you to live with a host family and experience another culture more fully. That is why I am grateful that both of my majors, Drama and Foreign Affairs, allowed me the time and flexibility to study abroad. I missed one semester of UVa Drama, but I still had the ability to act in mainstage productions, direct scenes, stage-manage shows, serve technical roles, and write plays within the Drama Department. I would recommend studying abroad to any UVa Drama major.
